COMPTROLLER APPROVES CONTRACTS FOR BRIDGE

Last Obstacle in the Way of Beginning Work on the Abutments Has Been Removed, According to a Letter From the State Highway Commission.

Delays in the state comptroller's approval of contracts for the construction of abutments for the Sleightsburgh bridge have been overcome and the contractors have been instructed to proceed with the work at once.

This information is contained in the following letter from First Deputy Highway Commissioner H. E. Breed to Philip Elting, chairman of the Republican County Committee, who has been indefatigable in his efforts to secure the construction of the bridge, which was received by Mr. Elting this morning:

State of New York,

A. Corbin & Co., to proceed with the work at once, and the department will do everything in its power to expedite this work.

ADJOURNMENT IN STIELOW CASE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rochester, N. Y. Aug. 23—Following a heated wrangle between counsel for Charles F. Stielow and District Attorney John Knickerbocker of Orleans county, Supreme Court Justice Rodenbeck this morning granted an adjournment of the hearon the argument of Stielow's counsel for a new trial.

Former Supreme Court Justice Sutherland made the request for an adjournment. He said counsel for Stielow was possessed of information which must be investigated and declared it was only fair to Stielow that an adjournment should be taken. Counsel declared that District Attorney Knickerbocker had prevented them seeing and conversing with Erwin King, who confessed to the murder of Phelps and his housekeeper and later made a retraction. Mr. Knickerbocker retorted hotly that he "had nothing to do with the matter," asserting that admission to see King had been denied by the sheriff. Judge Sutherland said that certain movements by King on the night of the murder were being traced by defendant's counsel and following a further tilt with the Orleans county prosecutor who opposed the postponement, Justice Rodenbeck set the hearing down for Sept. 27.

MILK DEALERS ASKED TO CONFER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 23.—Invitations were sent today to milk dealers of New York city to attend the conference which the Wicks committee will hold in the city hall, New York, next Friday.

While the coming meeting will be largely preliminary in character, it is expected that it will enable the committee to secure certain books from the larger milk gathering companies and likewise information from the smaller dealers.

During the last two weeks the committee has received numerous letters from New York city milk dealers protesting against certain phases of the business and these will be looked into.

Baseball on Andrew Street.

Sunday afternoon there will be a game of baseball on the Andrew street grounds between the Red Seals and the Eddyville nine. The latter team has a strong lineup of all star players and the Seals have been playing some fast games recently under the name of the Kingston Polars. The game will no doubt be an interesting one from start to finish. The contest will begin at 3 o'clock.

FINDS AUSTRIANS STILL FORMIDABLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Basle, Switzerland, Aug. 23.—Colonel Egli, of the Swiss Army, now serving as a war correspondent, today writes in the newspaper Nachrichten of this city an account of a visit he has just made to the Austrian front in Southern Galicia and the Bukowina. He found the army of General von Pflanzer-Baltin, which has fallen back accross Bukowina before the Russian advance, still in excellent condition, despite Allied reports that its retreat had been a debacle.

He says, in part:

"When I reached the southeastern wing of the Austrian line the Russians had just begun an attack on Mount Capul, which rises 5,400 feet above the plains of the Bukowina. At the same time the Russian forces advanced against Hill No. 1,360, which was four miles further east and a little south of Luczina. Both attacks were repulsed with heavy losses for the Russians.

"Accompanied by an Austrian captain I left the Valley of the Golden Bistritza and went to Kirlibaba Valley, where I had a better chance to observe the attacked positions. I found no excitement whatever among the Austro-Hungarian troops. Newly arrived reserves were cooly constructing shelters for men and horses less than two miles behind the battle front.

"The officers and men were in excellent spirits and only regretted that they had not been permitted to make a more determined stand at Czernowitz, where they had been strongly entrenched. A high officer informed me that the capital of the Bukowina was given up without a fight by order of the General Staff to prevent the total destruction of the city, which suffered severely when it fell into the hands of the Russians in the early stages of the war.

"The feeling of confidence which I found among the troops animates officers and men alike. I talked to dozens of privates in the trenches and all of them expressed their firm conviction that the present tremendous efforts of the Russians will end in failure sooner or later.

"The report circulated in Allied and neutral countries, that Austria-Hungary is drawing on her last reserves and has almost exhausted them in untrue. I have made it my business to inform myself thoroughly in regard to the actual conditions and can assure my readers that the Dual Monarchy is not anywhere near the end of her man power. The soldiers on the firing line are all strapping, healthy men between the ages of twenty and forty years, as the older landsturm troops are used to guard the lines of communication and escort munition and supply trains behind the front. In the trenches I found some very young looking men, but when I questioned them I learned that all were over twenty years old. An officer told me that some regiments have men of nineteen years, but I did not see them.

"The bearing and discipline of the troops could not be better, and I noticed a comradeship between the officers and men which is uncommon even in our republican Swiss army. The soldiers have faith in their officers and are trusted by them. This mutual confidence cannot be destroyed by temporary reverses.

"I had a long talk with the general in command of the Kirlibaba section. The general frankly conceded that the Russians may gain further successes, but he continued:

"'The enemy is always able to take any one of our positions, if he is willing to pay a staggering price in human lives and munitions. We are not sacrificing our troops needlessly. At the proper moment we fall back and then our reserves counter-attack. This strategy, supported by our immense supply of artillery, is sure to eventually break down the Russian offensive, which already has lost a good deal of its original strength.

"'We may retreat still further into the Carpathian mountains, but the enemy will never breath through this natural barrier and his advance through Galicia is impossible as long as General Brussiloff does not succeed in breaking the Austro-German front in Volhynia and on the Stokhod River.'

"The armies on the eastern front will again be deadlocked in a few weeks. I am firmly convinced that the Russians will not be able to reconquer more than one eighth of the territory taken from them before the fall rains and floods set in and stop the struggle."

ASK CITY TO PAY $500 TO THE FUND

Conference of Mayors Wants a Check to Balance Charges For Expenses Incurred in Fighting Advance in Fares.

At the meeting of the Newburgh city council E. C. M. Rand, as financial representative of the conference of mayors, requested that a check for $500 from the city of Newburgh be forwarded to defray the expenses that attended the fight against the New York Central Railroad Company, before the Public Service Commission of the state, to prevent the advance of passenger rates on the lines with which the New York Central system is affiliated. Mr. Rand says Yonkers has already paid $500 and other cities have agreed to do the same. The money is needed to defray the expenses of the stenographers, expert witnesses, printing and other expenses incurred in the successful fight against the railroad. The corporation counsel will decide as to the advisability of making the payment. Mr. Rand will doubtless make a similar appearance and request in Kingston.

STABBING CASE WAS SETTLED

At the Hearing Tuesday Afternoon John Lindhurst Withdrew Complaint Against Patrick Brophy Who is Accused of Stabbing Him.

Tuesday afternoon in recorder's court before Recorder Lang when the hearing of Patrick Brophy, accused of stabbing John Lindhurst, was resumed Robert Howard, who appeared for Lindhurst and Judge N. Frank O'Reilly, who appeared for Brophy, came into court and announced that a settlement had been reached and that Lindhurst desired to withdraw the complaint. Recorder Lang granted the request and Brophy was discharged.

It is understood that the terms of settlement was the payment of Lindhurst's doctor bills by Brophy.

According to the evidence at the morning session on Tuesday it developed that the stabbing was preceded by a crap game in a saloon in North Rondout, and that the trouble arose over a cent that had rolled off the board. After leaving the saloon a fracas started between Brophy and Lindhurst and resulted in Lindhurst receiving a number of wounds from a jack knife in the hands of Brophy.

HOW PARALYSIS EPIDEMIC SPREADS

Virtually the most flagrant, although an entirely unwitting, violation of Poughkeepsie poliomyelitis quarantine regulations occurred on Tuesday when Mrs. John Bruzzgell, of Lagrangeville, brought her three year old son Stephen, who was and is suffering from infantile paralysis, to that city by automobile in which there were four other children. The child's case had not been diagnosed before the trip was started. Whether any serious developments will result from the contact with the other children in the car will not be known for several days. Mrs. Bruzzgell's automobile ride came to an abrupt end when the matter was reported to Dr. John A. Card, city diagnostician. Dr. Card made a hurried trip to intercept the car, and upon examination found the child to be suffering from a well defined case of the disease. He ordered the mother and child home post-haste, and immediately notified Dr. Goode of Billings, health officer of the town of Lagrangeville.

FOILED ATTEMPT TO EVADE QUARANTINE

Child Brought in From Town of Wawarsing on Deceptive Certificate Purporting to be Signed by Physician.

"No new and no suspicious cases of infantile paralysis" continues to be the encouraging bulletin handed out by Dr. Frank A. Johnston, the health officer. The quarantine squad and the trained nurses are still working.

An effort to dodge quarantine and bring a child infected with the disease into Kingston and have it placed in one of the hospitals was discovered Tuesday afternoon, and the child was sent on to New York city. The child was about three months old and was at Greenfield in the town of Wawarsing when it became ill. The child was placed in an automobile and brought to Kingston. Members in the party with the child had a certificate purporting to be signed by a physician which stated the child was suffering from pneumonia and that it required a treatment of oxygen, and that the child should be placed in a hospital.

The members of the quarantine squad who was shown the certificate became suspicious and notified Dr. Johnston who with Dr. Clarke located the car and assisted by Dr. Stern and Dr. Norwood an examination was made of the child and it was found it was suffering from infantile paralysis. No time was lost in starting the party on their way to New York city.

WILL KEEP DEPOT CO. IN EXISTENCE

Home Guardsmen Pleased at Prospect of Further Service of Patriotic and Social Nature—Will Give Clambake for Old Guard and Company M.

Acting on the expressed desires of more than 80 per cent of its membership, the officers of the Depot Company, or Home Guard, which organized to take the place of Company M when that militia unit went into camp, intend to continue the organization. Judging from the opinions of the rank and file, there is a wide field of usefulness for the Home Guard and the drill and social features will make the organization most valuable to the membership.

A committee named last week by Captain Everett Fowler of the Depot Company canvassed the membership and reported Tuesday in favor of maintaining the company at full strength. The committee was made up of William C. DeWitt, O. Ray Hilltebrant, Carl S. Preston, Augustus Shufeldt and J. E. Canfield. In addition to the committee members, Captain Fowler, First Lieutenant Joseph M. Fowler and Second Lieutenant Frank W. Brooks were present.

After listening to the committee's report, it was decided that the membership would be limited to its present strength of 100. A meeting of the company will be held on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the armory. The company will be pleased to have any others enlist who did not join the company at the first call. No oath or obligation is required.

It is now planned to have drills weekly from about the middle of September to May 1st, the company having the privileges of the armory as well as those of the rifles for drill and for target practice at the armory and Mutton Hollow ranges.

One of the first social features to be engineered by the Depot Company will be a clambake to be tendered the latter part of September to Old Guard and to Company M.

Vassar's Date Unchanged.

Vassar College will open its fall session on September 22, as originally planned, no change having yet been made by the college authorities.

Automobile Used to Head-off Silk Thieves Aboard Freight.

Goshen, Aug. 23.—Captured at the muzzles of revolvers, after an automobile had outraced a fast freight, they were accused of trying to rob, John Howard, a negro, O. G. Anderson and Frank Reinhart were held for the grand jury on Friday. When the westbound freight slowed up at Sterlington for water about 8 o'clock on Thursday evening, Edward Borley a brakeman, noticed that the seal on a car containing $5,000 worth of silk, was broken. The mutter of conversation came from within. Speeding westward on the road, Borley spied an automobile. Waving his red flag furiously, he stopped it. Frank T. Bruno and Frank Edsall of Montclair, N. J., its occupants, who were returning from Delaware Water Gap, heard the brakeman's breathless story and put on full speed. The road parallels the tracks. They passed the train, shot up to the Tuxedo police station to take aboard a couple of policemen and returned in time to flag the train. The three prisoners were found among bundles of silk.

INJURED IN AUTO SMASH ON HIGHWAY

Cuban Chauffeur Seriously Hurt Near Poughkeepsie on Trip to Fleischmanns—Pugilist Companion Cut and Bruised.

Ralph Escadero, a Cuban chauffeur, and Nero Chink, a colored pugilist, were badly injured Tuesday morning when a tire blew out on the Winton six they were driving and threw them into a ditch along side the highway near St. Francis's Hospital, Poughkeepsie. Both were removed to the hospital, where it is feared Escadero's injuries may prove fatal.

The machine was later taken in charge by its owner, Isaac Polstine, of New York. It was a complete wreck with every wheel broken and the top and windshield crushed flat. It is said to have turned over three times after the blow out, striking a big pile of gravel which shot it ten feet in the air. Escadero was on his way from New York to Fleischmanns, where he was to take on his employer's wife and children.

Escadero suffered a broken nose, badly cut head and severe bruises on body with internal injuries. Chink got off with cuts and bruises. How both men escaped instant death puzzled witnesses to the accident.

WILSON SEEKS CONGRESSIONAL AID

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 23.—Legislative means of meeting counter suggestions made by the railroads of the country in the negotiations to prevent the threatened strike, were discussed by President Wilson today with Senator Newlands and Representative Adamson of Georgia, chairmen of the Congressional Interstate Commerce Committees. After canvassing the strike situation for more than an hour with the president, the congressional leaders declared that no immediate legislation dealing with the wage dispute was expected. It was understood, however, that the leaders talked over the possibility of referring the whole problem of legislation to prevent similar crises in the future, to the recently created joint sub-committee on railroad legislation, which has ample authority to investigate all phases of the transportation problem. Senator Newlands is chairman and Representative Adamson vice-chairman of this committee.

The conference today was the beginning of the consideration of legislative problems connected with the strike. The congressional leaders said they would meet the president again after he had conferred with the railroad executives in the strike settlement negotiations.

President Wilson laid before the congressional leaders suggestions made by railroad presidents for the modification of President Wilson's strike settlement plan. The railroad executives have asked the president for assurances that Federal means will be provided to prevent a recurrence of the present strike crisis. They suggested that a Federal commission be created along the lines of the Canadian Industrial Disputes Act Commission, which would have authority to deal with wage disputes through investigation and publicity. The plan would not be in the nature of compulsory arbitration, and the proposed commission would have no power to enforce its awards.

It would simply investigate and determine the facts, leaving the settlement of the dispute to public opinion, and to the sense of justice of the parties to the controversy. Under the Canadian act the commission is allowed a year for investigation, and meantime the strike is postponed.

The congressional leaders, after today's conference, said that they were not prepared to commit themselves on this proposition. They said the president had gone over the entire strike situation but had made no specific recommendations.

"We canvassed this strike crisis," said Representative Adamson. "Matters have reached a serious pass, and if legislation is necessary to aid in solving the difficulty, congress, of course, will act."

While the president sought legislative remedies, the railroad presidents continued their conferences in an effort to complete their answer to the president's settlement plan. The committee of eight named to formulate the railroad statement of the situation labored at length with various members of the executives' group. The members of the committee made vigorous efforts to consolidate the sentiment of the executives, but encountered opposition from a powerful group which insisted that nothing should be conceded with arbitration of the entire matter in dispute.

ROBBING THE STAR ROUTE CARRIERS

Some people have too many troubles of their own to worry over other people's misfortunes. Hence the star route mail carriers got little sympathy when the orders of the postmaster general suddenly and unexpectedly increased the weight of parcel post packages and decreased the postage. Out in the west, and even in some of the eastern states, people began sending freight matter by parcel post. The star route contractor, who had made his agreement under old laws and regulations, was compelled to supply teams and wagons to carry the increased mail.

The situation was very aptly described in a speech in the senate in February, 1914, by Senator Brady, of Idaho, who said: "The people of our state are very much interested in a fair and equitable postal rate, but they are more interested at the present moment in saving the star route contractors from bankruptcy under their present contracts with the government. The present arrangement is bankrupting every star route carrier in Idaho."

In many instances, said Senator Brady, the contractor not only failed and had to give up his teams and wagons but lost all the other property he had accumulated through years of hardship in carrying mails through winter storms and summer heat across the plains and through the mountains of the frontier.

That, of course, was nothing to worry a postmaster general, sitting in a lavishly furnished office in Washington. He had troubles of his own. He had to do his part toward setting aside the single-term pledge of the Baltimore platform. He had to make a record for the administration, even if a few hundred contractors did suffer the pangs of want and the humiliation of pauperdom. Besides the war in Europe has brought such great prosperity that the former mail contractors can probably get work in the copper mines or the munition factories. And, if not, they can enlist in the National Guard and go to the Mexican border at $15 per month and let the neighbors take care of their families. Will Burleson worry? Not he.

After the War.

The European war helps the sale of American machinery in Argentina, according to Special Agent J. A. Massel, of the Department of Commerce. Apparently some of Mr. Massel's comments escaped the eye of the censor in the department, for they tend to contradict the assertions of some of the department officials. "The great bulk of machinery and machine tools in the republic are of German make and now that this trade has been cut off, there will be an inceasing demand for machinery. Firms in the United States may get an occasional order during the continuance of the European war, but once the war is ended and business resumes its normal aspect, trade will inevitably turn back to Europe again unless in the meantime intelligent organization be effected and business efforts exerted to secure a satisfactory share of it for the United States." That is just exactly what business men have been saying for months. The war is all that stops German export trade. As soon as the war is over exports will begin again not only to South America, but to the United States as well, for the protective tariff wall has been destroyed by the Democratic party.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 23.—The consummation of a deal which will take from the Great Lakes the Wolvin line of steamers has been reached by representatives of the allies. This line has nine steamers which ply between Ogdensburg and Chicago, its principal trade being in grain and coal. The Wolvin line has been in operation between those points since the beginning of the present season. Several of the steamers have already been turned over to the new owners and as fast as possible the remainder will enter into their new service. It is said they will be used in traffic on the Atlantic.

REFRIGERATOR TALK.

The care of foods in the ice chest is one that is most important. Careless cleaning may prove disastrous and even fatal to members of the family. Food will not keep indefinately even on ice and food even slightly tainted which would not affect a normal person might be fatal to a young child.

Foods that should be kept moist may be rolled in damp linen and placed in the ice chest, this will keep them from drying out at the edges.

All boiled water or spring water of any kind should be kept tightly corked to keep out impurities. Boiled water absorbs impurities more quickly than the fresh.

Porcelain-lined plates are convenient for use in the ice chest as they are not easily injured and are sanitary. Keep plenty of waxed paper to cover food of different kinds as it is much more attractive when kept fresh.

Sliced vegetables or fruits may be chilled and placed upon a sheet of waxed paper then laid directly on ice.

The square porcelain-lined pans, two or three inches deep, make excellent receptacles for keeping raw or cooked meat; they take up less room than the round plates. These pans make excellent trays to hold custard cups or sherbet glasses that are set in the chest to cool.

The ice box should be thoroughly gone over once a week and two or three times a week carefully looked over to see that all foods are being used in proper time. The box should be aired and the drain pipe carefully flushed out as particles in the ice often stop the drain, making serious trouble. A strong solution of hot soda and water should be used to clean the drain. Small brushes made for the purpose of keeping the drain clean, are most useful, although a swab may be made that will answer every purpose.

It is vastly more important that the inside of the ice box should shine with good care than that the outside be attractive.

BROTHERHOOD MEN GETTING IMPATIENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The session of the brotherhood committeemen today developed that many of the members are getting very impatient over the tactics of the railroad presidents in delaying action. One delegate, Thomas Donovan, representing a division of the Boston & Albany railway, made a bitter speech denouncing the attitude of the railroads. In conclusion he threw a bomb into the meeting by moving that all of the committeemen return at once to their home stations and leave the four chiefs of the brotherhoods in Washington to "arrange for a general strike."

Donovan pressed his motion but after all of the big four heads had appealed to him not to throw a wrench into the machinery under existing conditions, he agreed to withdraw it temporarily. The brotherhood conference finally was adjourned until tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

A brief meeting of the railroad executives at noon adjourned without action. The executives were notified that the committee of eight was not yet prepared to report and that the committee was unable to fix a definite time when a report would be forthcoming. The general meeting then adjourned until later in the day to await the committee's deliberations. At that time no effort had been made to arrange for a White House conference.

FOR TRUTHFUL ADVERTISING.

Rotary Club's Resolution Calling For Honest Publicity.

George S. De Rouville, secretary of the Albany Rotary Club and advertising manager of the Cotrell & Leonard Company of Albany, N. Y., who was a delegate to the annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs at Cincinnati, has returned to Albany with the text of a resolution advocating truth in advertising. Mr. De Rouville was secretary of the hat trade section which was sponsor for the resolution.

Of twenty-seven resolutions presented to the convention only nine were passed, a fact which makes the adoption of the truthful advertising resolution all the more significant, says Mr. De Rouville. The resolution reads:

"Whereas, The Rotary principles are fully expressed by the sentiment that 'He profits most who serves best;' and,

"Whereas, We believe that advertising has come to be a vital force in the business world; and,

"Whereas, We believe that some merchants are inclined to make misstatements regarding values, prices and qualities in their advertising which have a tendency to discredit the value of all advertising.

"It is resolved by the seventh annual convention of the International Association of Rotary Clubs:

"That truth in advertising is beneficial to every one using the same, and it is recommended that Rotarians favor the enactment of laws to procure truth in all forms of advertising in states which now have no such statutes.

"That what is know as the Printers' Ink model law be recommended for adoption when applicable."

The attorney general said that the executed men were entitled to a fair legal trial, which they did not receive. They were innocent persons, he said, not taking any active part in the rebellion. The taking of evidence was then begun.

Sergeant Aldridge, who had charge of the firing squad, said that the men were neither blindfolded nor pinioned when they were shot. They were given no time to pray.

Marries Widow of Two Brothers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Carthage, Miss., Aug. 23.—Following the injunction laid down in the old law of Moses, the third brother of the family of a fast fading tribe of Choctaw Indians, in Lake county, has married the widow of his two older brothers. Several years ago the eldest brother married and lived with his bride but a short time, when he died. The second brother then married the woman. After eighteen months he, too, passed away. The widow was taken into the home of the youngest brother as his wife and they are living together happily. The tribe is fast becoming extinct, and it is a difficult matter for the men, who far exceed the women in numbers, to select a wife not in some way related to him.

Ellis Estate Appraised.

County Treasurer Snyder, an appraiser under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of Joseph W. Ellis, sometimes known as J. Wade Ellis, of the town of Saugerties. The estate consists of personal property amounting to $7,325; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $770.83, leaving a net estate of $6,554.14, on which the inheritance tax is $15.54. Ada G. James, of New York city, the administratrix, was represented by Byron L. Davis; Joseph H. Vanderlyn appeared for the state comptroller.

Progressive Tobacco Merchandising.

Progress in tobacco merchandising is epitomized in the publication of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, known as "The Open Door," an eight page newspaper issued by this corporation at Winston-Salem, N. C. Its columns are filled with good stuff for firm employes from salesmen to sweepers and it advertises Reynolds's products exclusively. If anybody thinks the south is lagging behind in the commercial march, a look through "The Open Door" will convince them otherwise.

HEAT CUTS SHORT CATHOLIC WEEK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 23.—When the delegates to the fifteenth annual convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies met today, it was with the intention of rushing through their business to a hasty conclusion instead of extending the meetings through Thursday. The intention to cut short the convention was brought about by the intense heat wave under which New York is now sweltering. Many delegates left for home last night without waiting for the election of officers and the selection of a next meeting place.

The movement of a faction of the Catholic women's league to form an independent organization has received the support of Archbishop Sebastian Messmer, of Milwaukee. It was announced that a meeting was held last night at which the archbishop presided and the following committee was appointed to take up the task of bringing about a separate section for the women: Miss Helen Haney of Randolph, Mass.; Mrs. Sarah A. Conroy of New York; Mrs. C. A. Walsh of Philadelphia., Miss Margaret Leech of Pittsburgh; Mrs. S. K. Wilson of Chicago; Mrs. Charles Cosgrain of Detroit; Mrs. Mary J. Workman of Los Angeles, and Miss C. Germerhausen.

"I have always been in favor of a separate federation for Catholic women," said Archbishop Messmer. "But as they are now united with the federation of societies, they can form a separate section."

Of the 300 women delegates, about thirty attended the meeting. The separationists are to form a plan which will be submitted to the executive board of the federation. If it is approved, it will be taken up at the next annual convention.

A sharp tilt developed at the meeting this morning between Col. Patrick Callahan of Louisville, chairman of the committee on religious prejudice of the Knights of Columbus, and Joseph T. Brennan of Boston.

In addressing the convention, Col. Callahan said:

"One of the purposes of our committee is to disillusion the non-Catholics who claim that the Catholics look through the eyes of the capitalists. I notice, however, that there is no unanimity among the Catholics, which is easy to see from the newspaper reports of this convention. The question of religious prejudice is the greatest before the American people today. It is even grater than the hyphenate question. It is not so much a religious question, and it concerns the entire American people."

Col. Callahan went on to say that he congratulated the non-Catholic people on their fairness and toleration. When he had finished Mr. Brennan leaped to his feet, and after some difficulty, made himself heard.

"It is nothing short of silly to make such a remark that the five-sixths of the population that is non-Catholic is fair to us," he shouted.

"It is soft soap and nothing more. The Catholics cannot thrive without a struggle, and I can speak with authority on conditions in Massachusetts. There the Catholics give annually $4,000,000 to the state and what does the state give them? Nothing. Let us not be blind to the fact that there is prejudice against us Catholics. It is absurd to say anything else."

J. P. Brennan of Boston was dropped as sixth vice-president, being succeeded by Peter Gand.

The officers chosen were:

President, John Whalen of New York; first vice president, Thomas P. Flynn of Chicago; second vice president, J. A. Coller of Shakopee, Minn.; third vice president, Joseph Frey of New York; fourth vice president, J. J. Hynes of Buffalo; fifth vice president, Joseph McLaughlin of Philadelphia; sixth vice president, Peter Gand; secretary, Anthony Matre, of Chicago; treasurer, C. H. Schulte, of Detroit; marshal, Anthony Kuhn, of Victoria, Kans.

Kansas City was unanimously chosen as the next convention city.

The delegates adopted without a dissenting vote the recommendation of the organization committee to reorganize the federation. It was suggested that the constitution be elaborated and that the name be changed to the Catholic Federation of the United States. The reorganization plans must be approved by the bishops of the country before they can be effective, but it is said that most of them already approve the suggestion.

The Rev. Father Garesch of St. Louis appealed to the federation to establish Catholic organizations for young men similar to the Y. M. C. A.

The convention adjourned shortly after noon.

BUILDING COLLAPSES.

Two Men Probably Dead Under Ruins in New York.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 23.—A five story building in course of construction in Marion avenue, between 187th and 188th streets, collapsed today burying several workmen in the ruins. Ambulances from three hospitals, two companies of firemen and police reserves were called to the scene of the accident.

Twenty-five men were caught in the collapse, but all except two escaped with minor injuries. The two missing men are believed to have perished.

William Butler, foreman of the company constructing the building, was arrested on a technical charge of homicide and a member of the firm, was held as a material witness.

Meeting of Excelsior Hose.

A special meeting of Excelsior Hose Company, No. 4, will be held at its rooms on Hurley avenue, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock to consider important business.

BIG MONEY WILL DECIDE R. R. POLICY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The great financial interests behind the railroads of the country are now reaching a decision whether they will accept the demand of President Wilson to agree to an eight-hour work day at a ten-hour wage rate to precent a general railroad strike. While they are doing so, the railway presidents now here are sparring for time. A definite decision hardly will be reached before Friday and may be deferred until early next week. But intimations reaching here from New York and Chicago make it plain that eventually President Wilson will secure recognition of the main points of his demand and the railroads will have laid the foundation for permanency in settling wage disputes.

Following today's session of the sub-committee of the railway presidents which has been authorized to arrange an agreement if possible, the following statement was issued:

"A meeting of the presidents and managers was held this morning, and a recess taken until six o'clock.

"Chairman Holden stated that the report being circulated that any conclusion had been reached was incorrect."

SOCIETY NOTES.

Last evening Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Van Aken most delightfully entertained a few of their relatives and friends at their beautiful home "Elmhurst," Sleightsburgh.

The Ever Ready Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Zimmerman on Salem street, Port Ewen, Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Zimmerman and Mrs. W. C. Mabie will be the hostesses.

Benefit Recital at Cragsmoor.

Kingston people who are fond of good music and are at the same time philanthropically inclined will be interested to attend a musical recital to be given at Cragsmoor tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Elsie Hasbrouck, daughter of Judge and Mrs. G. D. B. Hasbrouck, will sing several selections. The other numbers on the program which will be given by guests at Cragsmoor will be equally attractive. Admission to the recital will be one dollar, the proceeds to go for the benefit of St. John's Floating Hospital for Children, New York city.

Sellers-Quick.

Miss Helen R. Quick, daughter of the Rev. Ambrose Quick of Kerhonkson, Ulster county, and Paul Thornton Sellers of Franklin, N. H., were married at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the home of the bride's brother-in-law, Robert B. Haner, 103-B South Pine avenue, Albany. The bride's father conducted the ceremony. There were no attendants. Palms, ferns and goldenrod were used in decorating the house. The wedding music was by two friends of the bride. Miss Grace Mead gave several violin solos and Miss Gertrude Wells played the wedding march. Miss Quick was gowned in white crepe meteor and Irish lace and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. Mr. and Mrs. Sellers will leave for Webster Lake, New Hampshire, for a month's stay before going to Franklin to reside. The bride was graduated from the Albany High School and the State College for Teachers. The bridegroom was graduated from the New Hampshire State College and is an instructor in the schools of Franklin.

Hughes in Nevada.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Reno, Nev., Aug. 23.—Charles E. Hughes and his official party came to Nevada today after an extended sojourn in California. The candidate arrived here at 8:25 o'clock after a tiresome nine hour trip from Sacramento, where he spoke last night.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Aug. 23.—Mr. and Mrs. Elias Overfield and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Zimmerman of Newburgh motored to this place Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller at their home on Maple avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Parks of Poughkeepsie were in this place last Sunday.

Mr. Roberts of New York city has been ill for over a month at the home of Mrs. James S. Mack, "Hillair," where he and his wife have been boarding for the season. Glad to report he is gaining nicely and was on the porch Saturday. His friends hope for his speedy recovery.

We have had a week of most glorious, clear, cool weather and now it seems we are going to have just the reverse for it is exceedingly warm. It seems the weather has been favorable for people to go on auto trips and never has there been so much touring as this summer. The reason perhaps is the good thoroughfare from the river, making it a pleasure to tourists to come through here. They have good ferry service, running late in the evening, making it a great feature to all going through the country for pleasure, and the road is just lined with a constant procession of cars from early in morning till late in evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Duane Eckert, who live in Poughkeepsie, have been spending some time here the past week visiting friends and relatives.

J. W. Feeter has been out trying his luck at fishing again. He is very fond of that sort of sport.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flaack returned from their wedding trip and came to this place on Saturday for a visit with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Stellar, and some of the small boys and few big ones also wended their way to the Stellar home with pans, bells, horns and every available noisy thing they could find and made the air ring with their music by the name of skimmington, which the people all enjoyed in the lower part of town.

Recently at the "Elms" a boarding house conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Harcourt on Main street, a gentleman boarder from Brooklyn—and a sharper we think—left Mr. Harcourt's owing them 16 dollars board bill. He was arrested in Poughkeepsie and when captured displayed as he termed, a valuable diamond ring which he gave in preference to paying the bill. He claimed the ring was worth fifty dollars but were informed it was a very cheap affair, perhaps from the 10 cent store where many of the so called diamonds hail from. Too bad that a man should go around the country swindling people and passing paste diamonds for collateral. We would warn people look out for the so called gentry, also enforce your laws as you should do.

KINGSTON, N. Y., AUG. 23, 1916.

Whether it is wiser for the Democratic National Committee to keep William Jennings Bryan out of New York State during the coming Presidential campaign is a matter that admits of much discussion. New York knows Bryan and his policies and has no use for either. Bryan will support Wilson for re-election, but how he is enabled to compromise with his conscience is a question that will be answered best by his speeches. According to present plans he will not be heard in the East during the campaign but will spread his oratory over the Middle West and the Pacific slope. With Bryan giving vent to his feelings New York by hearing him personally could realize more fully the depths to which politics has sunk both Wilson and Bryan in their determination to prevent the United States from having a settled policy on any public question. By remaining away, Bryan supplies a cause for much comment because of the support he accords Wilson in spite of the fact that his frequently expressed views are so utterly at variance with those of the President. A Presidential campaign gives the Nebraskan an opportunity to air his views anyway, and that is what is most satisfying to him. Anyone who has followed his speechmaking career realizes that a cause is not necessarily being supported by Bryan because he is announced to be speaking in its favor. In a great many cases his speeches with few alterations are just as good for Chautauqua lectures as for campaign purposes, and the idea of the National Committee in keeping him away from the East evidently is to allow him his usual activity but to restrict him to territory in which he can do the least harm.

Even the Congressional worm will turn. Because of the proposed $10,000 salaries for each of the members of the new Shipping Board, a similar [illegible] for the Tariff Commission members, to say nothing of the scale already fixed for other administration-created bodies such as the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Reserve Board and the Farm Loan Board, Congressmen are becoming restive if not jealously vindictive. Passing so many plums to Democratic patriots gives even a majority Congressman an appetite. Representative Decker of Missouri fired the first shot against the high salaries when he naively declared that "no one could be worth more than a Representative in Congress." While it was natural that prolonged applause should greet this statement, the query equally natural is: What is a Congressman worth anyway? As a matter of record, he gets $7,500 a year, all manner of blame and a mileage allowance. He is almost continuously in session with his fellow members and their proceedings fill vast volumes recording actions and words, the actions in most cases speaking less loudly than the words. When not in Washington, the average Congressman is usually erecting fences in his home district. He is a necessity under the constitution and a luxury under appropriations. There is no such word as adjournment in his lexicon. He has a high appraisal of his own value and if a majority of his colleagues shall decide that their mad rush of making jobs must cease and salaries be reduced in the patronage pageant, we shall have cause to be thankful.

Thomas Totterman, a Sing Sing convict high in the ranks of the Mutual Welfare League, walked away from the prison farm at Green Haven Monday and left Tom Brown ideals and his plighted word behind him together with a life sentence for murder. For Totterman—the name is apt—was at the prison farm "on honor," which is a mysterious mental manacle by which Warden Osborne binds his charges no matter how strong the appeal of freedom. We are told by prison reformers that most of these offenders are mental defectives. In the same breath the men are treated as though normal beings with normal knowledge of what is right and wrong and are put upon their honor instead of under duress. As is usual with all hobby riders, prison reformers carry their ideas to too great length, going beyond the limits set by law and common sense. So far five men have celebrated the return of Tom Brown to Sing Sing prison by making their escapes. Yet the pathetic trust of prison authorities in the perverted intelligences entrusted to their guardianship continues.

It is a bad thing for churches to get into politics, and the National Federation of Catholic Societies, in session this week in New York, deserves credit for resisting the temptation to express its justifiable indignation against the Wilson Administration, it contented itself with passing a resolution asking that "whatever form of Government be established in Mexico, with the aid and friendship of our own country, it shall grant and guarantee liberty and freedom of worship as they exist in our United States and which are denied in Mexico by unjust laws." The Federation is well aware of the fact that in backing Carranza our Government put itself on the side of a cruel bigot whose pet desire is to oppress and murder Catholics, but it refrained from emphasizing the point.

Aviators Spoiled Darlings.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 23.—The French air pilots are today in danger of becoming the spoiled darlings of Paris. A handsome young pilot named Nungesser, as he stepped from a cafe to his motorcar, was surrounded by a crowd of midinettes, who pressed round him requesting his signature on post cards. Vedrines was seen near the Place de l'Opera, and a young woman came forward and presented him with a bouquet, while hands were thrust out to him on every side.

She—"There goes Jones. I hear he married a very superior woman." "Any woman would be superior to Jones."—Life.

"To what do you attribute his success?" "To the fact that he was investigated by a Federal commission. Nobody ever heard of him before that."—Puck.

Mrs. Nodd—"The Todds may come over tonight. She hinted at it—and I am so tired!" Nodd—"Don't worry; they won't come. I met him on the train and told him I had just got in a new lot of phonograph records."—Judge.

"How have you managed to escape the necessity of saying you have been misquoted?" "By a very simple method," replied Senator Sorghum. "I avoid saying anything of sufficient interest to tempt anybody to try to quote me."—Washington Star.

Parliamentary Ruling.

There was a wedding in Kentucky the other day, relates the New Orleans States, and as usual the minister in the course of the ceremony said, "If anyone has aught to say why this couple should not be joined in the holy bonds of wedlock let him now speak or forever hold his peace." During the silence that followed a man who was accustomed to serving as a chairman of the meeting arose and, rapping the top of the pew sharply with his knuckles, said: "There being no objection, the motion is carried."

"Bang Goes Saxpence."

"Good morning, Mr. McIntosh!" said the lady courteously, as she entered the grocer's shop. "Would you like a ticket for our concert tonight?"

McIntosh eyed her dourly.

"Whit's tae pey?" he asked bluntly.

"Oh, nothing! The seats are all free."

"Then Th'll be gled tae come!" said McIntosh, with a beaming smile.

The lady handed over the ticket, gave him her usual order for groceries, and left the shop. At once McIntosh scanned the ticket eagerly. At the bottom he found the words:

"The holder of this ticket is expected to buy a program, price sixpence."

Angrily he threw it on the counter.

"D'ye see that, noo?" he snorted furiously. "Ah micht hae ken't there wis a catch in it somewhere!"—London Answers.

Canny.

A young couple had been courting for several years and the young man seemed to be in no hurry to marry. Finally, one day, he said:

"Sall, I canna marry thee."

"How's that?" asked she.

"I've changed my mind," said he.

"Well, I'll tell thee what we'll do," said she. "If folks know that its thee has given me up I shanna be able to get another chap; but if they think I've given thee up then I can get all I want. So we'll have banns published and when the wedding day comes and parson will say to thee, 'Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?' and thou must say 'I will.' And when he says to me, 'Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband?' I shall say, 'I winna.'"

The day came, and when the minister asked the important question the man answered:

"I will."

Then the parson said to the woman:

"Wilt thou have this man to be thy wedded husband," and she said:

"I will."

"Why," said the young man, furiously, "you said you would say 'I winna.'"

"I know that," said the young woman, "but I've changed my mind since."—Pearson's.

Whisky.

Sir Victor Horsley, the London brain surgeon, devotes his leisure to the study of alcohol, and has come to the conclusion that mankind should be teetotal.

An American doctor, lunching with Sir Victor, said, apropos of the latter's alcohol investigations:

"Well, have you found out what whisky is yet?"

"Certainly," was the reply. "It is the most popular poison in the world."—Washington Star.

HAPPINESS.

Here is good advice for those seeking happiness: Do not worry, eat three square meals a day, keep digestion good, exercise, go slow and go easy. Maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy; but, my friend, these will give you a good lift.—Abraham Lincoln.

HUGHES WILL WIN ON 1914 VOTE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 23.—The Republican Publicity Association, through its president, the Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., today gave out the following statement at its Washington headquarters:

If the country votes at the presidential election this year as it voted at the congressional election of 1914, Hughes will carry California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

"These states have 286 votes in the electoral college a majority of which is only 266.

"In each of these states, two years ago, the Republican congressional ticket received a clear plurality of votes. In these states combined the Republican candidates for congress received 4,075,157 votes, while the Democratic candidates for congress received only 3,132,568 votes—the total Republican plurality being 942,589.

"In each of these states, in 1914, there was an organized Progressive campaign—except in Nevada, North Dakota, Utah and Wisconsin, although in Utah there was a Fusion ticket running in opposition to the Republicans. The total Progressive vote in these states was 746,341; and the combined Republican-Progressive plurality over the Democrats was 1,688,930.

"Two years ago there were five states—Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Nebraska, and Ohio—which are fairly to be classed as normally Republican but where the Democratic congressional ticket received a plurality of votes ranging from a beggarly 365 in Maine to an impressive 42,752 in Indiana. But the Progressive vote in each of these five states was far in excess of the difference between the Republican and Democratic totals, and ranged from 3,111 in Nebraska to 90,040 in Indiana. In Kansas the Progressive vote in 1914 amounted to 74,441; in Ohio it was 47,981; and in Maine it was 17,985.

"These five states will cast 63 votes in the electoral college. How will they vote this year?

"Hopeful Democratic statisticians estimate the division of the former Progressive vote upon different proportions—in each instance, however, giving the long end of it to the Republicans and in no instance claiming that more than 30 per cent of the Bull Moose will support Wilson. Upon this extreme hypothesis, let us examine the vote of the five states where a Democratic plurality was found in the congressional elections of 1914.

"The Republican vote of Indiana in 1914 was 233,140, the Progressives casting 90,040, and the Democrats 275,892. Dividing the Bull Moose strength on the basis of seventy and thirty per cent, respectively, to the Republicans and the Democrats, the vote of Indiana this year should be: Republican, 296,162; Democratic, 302,994. The margin is too small for comfort on either side, and Indiana must remain as fighting territory until the votes are counted. The Progressives—aided, it is said, by Democratic funds—are maintaining an organization in that state; but competent observers believe that from 85 to 90 per cent of the Moose will vote for Hughes and that the number who will support Wilson are negligible. Upon this basis, Indiana should go for Hughes and Fairbanks by nearly 30,000.

"The seventy-thirty division applied to Kansas would give that state to the Republicans by the following figures: Republican, 240,215; Democratic, 218,162.

In Maine the result would be: Republican, 72,888; Democratic, 66,071.

"In Nebraska the figures should show: Republican, 113,376; Democratic, 113,820. This is another hairline of demarcation—but there is no Bull Moose ticket in Nebraska this year; and while the contest will be a hard one, the indications are that Hughes will carry the state.

"The same division of the Progressive vote in Ohio would produce figures for 1916 in this wise: Republican, 511,038; Democratic, 498,658.

"It is, therefore, a fair assumption that, in addition to retaining the states which disclosed a clear Republican plurality in 1914—and which assure a majority of the electoral college—the Republican ticket this year will gain Kansas, Maine and Ohio without question and secure for Hughes and Fairbanks a total of 326 out of the 531 votes in the electoral college—with more than a fighting chance to add the 23 votes of Indiana and Nebraska to that number, making 349, or a majority of 167.

"Hughes will not be a minority president.

"The figures upon which the foregoing is based are taken from the World Almanac, and in detail they are as follows:

Originally Latin Phrase.

The origin of the phrase: "All my eye, Betty Martin" comes of mispronunciation of the Latin "O mihi, beate Martine," which is literally, "O blessed Martin (help) me" and is found in several litanies of the middle ages. Now it is slang for a lie. There are several such Latin phrases which have been degraded or transmuted. Hocus pocus is derived from the solemn "hoc est corpus," and siserary is a corruption of certiorari.

TALES OF ANCIENT CITY OF ARMENIA

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23.—Bitlis, the Armenian city from which the Russians conceded their retirement recently in the face of a superior Turkish force, is the subject of the following war geography bulletin issued today from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"With its thick-walled houses built of volcanic rock, the town of Bitlis, spreading over the steep banks of the Bitlis Chai, a tributary of the Tigris, is one of the most picturesque communities of Asia Minor. Its inhabitants, 35,000 in number, one third of whom are Armenians and the others of Kurdish descent, are largely engaged in the manufacture of a coarse red cloth, while their commercial activities are chiefly confined to the export of an inferior grade of tobacco and the gathering and shipment of gum tragacanth.

"Bitlis for hundreds of years has been a town of great strategic importance because it is situated on the main highway between the Van plateau and the plains of Mesopotamia. Lake Van is only 50 miles to the east, Mush is 40 miles to the northwest, and Erzerum a little more than 100 miles in the same direction. Roads lead through a mountain pass in a southerly direction toward Mosul, which is more than 150 miles distant in an airline.

Where Alexander Built.

"Owing to its elevation, nearly a mile above sea level, Bitlis suffers greatly from snowstorms and it not infrequently happens that many of its narrow streets are blocked by snowdrifts for four or five months of the year, although the temperature seldom falls below zero.

"Like many of the towns in this 'morning land of history,' Bitlis has had a most interesting past. Fact and fable are so intricately interwoven however, that the reader of Kurdish literature finds it equally hard to be wholely credulous or altogether skeptical. One of the most interesting traditions of the town concerns the site of the ruins of a castle occupying the triangle at the juncture of two streams near the center of the city. Here Alexander the Great is said to have built a fortress during his campaign of 'world conquest.' Nineteen centuries later, almost under the shadow of this castle, the great Turkish sultan, Solyman the Magnificent, met one of his few defeats at the hands of the Persians whom he subdued many times, just as he defeated many European armies on the plains and in the mountain fastnesses of Hungary during his brilliant reign of nearly half a century, marking the height of the Ottoman empire.

Tamerlane Named Ruler.

"It was in the 14th century that a subject of the great Mongol warlord, Tamerlane, was appointed to rule this part of Kurdistan after the conquest of Diarbekir The official entrusted with this duty was Amir Qara Uthman (Black Lord Uthman,) who, instead of perpetrating such cruelties as did his master in building a pyramid of 2,000 human beings piled up with alternate layers of brick and mortar, conquered the land by matrimony. Taking a daughter of the noble Kurdish family of Hakkari as his wife Qara Uthman soon won his way into the affections of the people so that when Tamerlane's power began to wane this viceroy was able to retain a strong hold upon the mountain tribes Uthman's descendants adopted the title of Princes of Bitlis and they held sway in this region for more than four centuries The last of this remarkable line was Sharn Bey who held out against the preponderant power of the Turks for several years during the first half of the 16th century but was finally defeated and taken a captive to Constantinople in 1849

"The Kurds, who constituted two thirds of the population of Bitlis and who have held sway in this mountainous region of Asia Minor for many centuries, have been variously appraised by travelers One extreme view is that 'they are as destitute of annals as the wolves and jackals among whom they have lived in the high mountains from immemorial times,' while the writer who estimates the other side of the shield of their character speaks glowingly of the mountaineers thus. Every nation that ever acquired fame and name in the eastern world's history—Assyrian, Parthian, Greek, Roman, Persian, the Arabs, Mohommedans and Mongols—has invaded this part of western Asia, yet the "holders of the hills and the possessors of the tongue" have withstood every army and have retained the purity of their Aryan blood and their Aryan language.'

Two Picturesque Legends.

"Concerning the origin of the Kurds there are two picturesque Persian legends. The first relates that at the suggestion of the devil the serpents of the mythological monster Zohak were regularly fed upon human brains. Two youths who had been condemned to have their heads robbed for serpent sustenance escaped death by substituting goats' brains for their own. These youths became the progenitors of the Kurds.

"The other legend is a bit more erotic, as if it had come from the mental loom which wove the tales of the 'Thousand And One Knights.' It relates that during his campaign for the collection of 700 wives, King Solomon ordered a contingent of 400 virgins from the Far East. While on their way to Jerusalem they passed through the Bitlis region and here a band of evil spirits mingled with the prospective brides of the Wisest King. The news reached Solomon and he immediately ordered the young women to come no nearer his court, but to remain with the spirits who had contaminated them. The Kurds, says this legend, are the offsprings of this mating of the virgins with the evil ones."

PAEONIAN GIRL'S INDUSTRY FAMOUS

But Modern Dwellers in Doiran Are Not Such Workers—History of Region Scene of Salonika Drive.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington D. C., Aug. 23.—Doiran, the town at which the Franco-British forces from Salonika began their long-expected drive recently, is described in the following war geography bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society from its Washington headquarters:

"Situated on the frontier between Servia and Greece, and only about ten miles south of the Bulgarian boundary, Doiran, also known as Polianiso, is 40 miles northwest of Salonika on the southern shores of the almost circular lake of the same name. It was doubtless chosen as the point of first attack by the allies because it is connected by rail with Salonika, the road from the Greek port to Constantinople here making a great loop to the northwest and then returning eastward by way of Seres, an important town about 45 miles northeast of the Salonika base of operations.

"Lake Doiran, nestling under the southern declivities of the Belasitza mountain range, is probably the Lake Prasias mentioned by Herodotus whose description of the Paeonians, living in houses built over the edge of the water, fits in a measure the modern fisherfolk living in huts in this vicinity. The women of present-day Doiran are not as famous for their industry, however, as were their noted forerunners of whom the Greek historian relates a typical story to the effect that Darius, seeing a beautiful Paeonian girl carrying a pitcher of water on her head, leading a horse to drink, and at the same time spinning flax, immediately ordered his Thracian general to send two tribes of these Paeonians into Asia in order that they might instill a similar spirit of thrift among the Persians.

"Eight miles west of Doiran is the Vardar river, which rises in the Shar Mountains, flows through the Uskup plain and enters the Gulf of Salonika, thus constituting for hundreds of years the principal route from Central Europe to the Aegean Sea. Between the Vardar and the Struma river (to the east) extend the Belasitza Mountains, a range some 50 miles in length forming part of the southern boundary of Bulgaria.

Blinded 15,000 Soldiers.

"The name of these mountains will always be associated with one of the most harrowing episodes of the middle ages, for it was at the battle of Belasitza that Samuel, the Bulgarian czar who had conquered practically all of the Balkan peninsula, and whose sway extended from the Danube to Morea, met defeat at the hands of the redoubtable Byzantine emperor, Basil II, surnamed Bulgaroktonos (Slayer of Bulgarians). Basil had laid the foundation for his success a quarter of a century previously when he rode out in front of his troops at Abydos and challenged his rebel general, Bardas Phocas, to single combat. Phocas, wheeling his horse preparatory to accepting the challenge, fell from his charger and when picked up by his soldiers was found to be dead.

"During the battle of Belasitza in 1014 Basil captured 15,000 Bulgarians. He blinded the whole number, leaving but one eye to every hundredth man, spared to this extent in order that he might act as a guide for the pitiable host of warriors thus returned to their czar. When Samuel beheld this helpless army of his mutilated subjects marching toward him he fainted and two days later died of grief. With him died the Slavonic empire of the Balkans and for a century and a half thereafter the Bulgarians were subject to the Byzantine rulers."

Can't Even Tote Rum.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 23.—Macon is in deadly earnest in her fight against Demon Rum. STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

Such is the law—A man commits a crime, and a judge finds him guilty and commits him to jail. Then the man gets a lawyer who gets up a paper and presents it to a judge of a higher court, and that judge signs the paper, and then the sheriff unlocks the jail door and the man is free again. Then the man commits another crime and—well it's only another technicality of the law.

Somewhat self evident—A young man slowly propelled himself along the city street as though walking was an exertion when he is accosted by a friend who asks "Are you going to school now Alfred?"

"No I am working for my father" is the reply.

"I suppose you find lots to keep you busy," is the query.

"Believe me it takes very little to keep me busy" and the young man slowly proceeds on his way to work.

Sample street conversation these days—Hot ain't it—Yep awful hot—Makes me sweat—Me too—Never knew it to be so hot—It is dreadful hot—Ain't it.—Goo'by—Goo'by.

A fable—Once upon a time there was a great epidemic and a city took proper precautions to bar out the disease by placing a strict quarantine. It kept children from neighboring cities out of the city. Then business fell off, and a few merchants got together and talked over matters, and decided to bring pressure on the health board to relieve quarantine so business could pick up. And they did and the health board did. Then there broke out in the city a number of cases, and it cost the city much money to subdue the epidemic and the next year the tax rate shot higher than ever to pay for the expenses of fighting the epidemic. But business had to be assisted.

We picked some tomatoes from our own vines today, and we felt real proud and well repaid for the trouble taken in planting the vines. We might add we paid for the plants, and did not get them free from the government. That might be the reason why we were able to harvest some tomatoes today with the prospect of harvesting more.

Our success with our tomato plants, which we bought, has led us to determine to sit down and type the government a nice letter asking them to use the money that it costs for the free seed they sent us in help building a battleship. We think that if every one who gets free seed would do the same that we would soon have enough money on hand to build the ship. We are willing to start this movement toward a free seed battleship. We are not particular about what name this fund is called. Might suggest calling it the free seed battleship fund. Each one who writes might be presented with a little button bearing on its face the picture of a free seed. Pass along the idea neighbor.

Advice is one of the things in this world that is freely given—and seldom used.

Now that President Wilson has named three members of the United States-Mexico board we might as well prepare to be bored with lengthy reports of consultations that at the close will leave the Mexican situation as it is today, as clear as mud.

It's hard to keep cheerful these hot days when the young man next door is learning to play a cornet says Constant Reader.

And it's easier to knock than it is to applaud the young woman taking singing lessons who arises at an early hour each morning when it is cool to practice adds Old Subscriber.

BLOOMING IS GRATEFUL.

Hebrew School Teacher Thanks Those Who Aided Him.

Joseph Blooming of Greenfield, town of Wawarsing, who has arrested some time ago by Sheriff Shultis on a body execution but was released after Lawyer Henry Klein had interested a number of Kingstonians in his behalf and collected sufficient money to satisfy the judgment against Blooming, has written a letter to Leventhal Brothers expressing his appreciation and thanks for what was done for him.

Blooming was a school teacher before taking up farming and when he first went to Greenfield he was employed to teach Hebrew to Jewish children. His letter is written entirely in Hebrew and his use of the language is pronounced by those acquainted with Hebrew to be perfect.

A literal translation of the letter has been made which indicates the extremely rare appreciation of the writer, who says in part:

"There is only justice in Heaven. You should always do justice and good in this world. For the whole community of Kingston, composed of citizens of honor and refinement, I have only praise for the relief you granted to me. Your love for the stranger within your gates is as almighty as the sun in its glory, and good fortune shall shine for you as the sun, for your goodness. May God protect you from all evil and grant you happiness. Your reward shall be from the Almighty God, and shall be double what you expect. May your life be prolonged and your business good, and may blessings be continued for you into the future for many years. Do not be angry at my brief letter or think that I have been angry because I did not write before. May my letter bring a blessing on all of you.

IT WILL BE SOME EXCITING GAME

When the Police and Firemen Meet on September 13, at Athletic Field—Proceeds For Benefit of Both Pension Funds.

The paid firemen and the police are doing some great training stunts for the great game to be held on September 13, at the Athletic Field when picked men from both departments will clash in one of the most thrilling baseball games pulled off in Kingston in years.

In looking over the many players on the police squad it should not be forgotten that the paid firemen have some exceptionally fine players. There is LaRue Weber, who in his balmy days was a star in the Hudson River League. He has not forgoten his former cunning and great things may be looked forward to when he dons a suit and strides out on the diamond. Strubel and McElrath are also past stars of the diamond, and will do mighty work when the game is called.

Owing to the fact that it has been such hot weather some of the police have been unable to summon enough energy to train seriously to reduce their flesh, and there has been some talk of permitting Policeman Fout to have his auto on the sidelines so that when the stouter members of the police squad slam the ball that they can do their base running from the seat of Fout's car while the latter drives it around the diamond.

The firemen are agreed if they are allowed to use the auto truck for the same purpose, as some of their men are also somewhat stout.

In the meantime secret practice is being indulged in. "Sime" Wood, the patrol driver, is getting his wind in shape by driving around in the patrol wagon for exercise.

Fuller details will be given later, but don't forget to buy a ticket when asked. Both pension funds need the money.

QUARANTINES ARE GROWING STRONGER

As the infantile paralysis epidemic is sweeping upstate other cities are following the example set by Kingston and are adopting the same stringent quarantine regulations in force here, as it has been found the only method to prevent an outbreak of the disease.

Schenectady now has its first case of infantile paralysis and it was positively diagnosed as such on Tuesday. The victim is Henry Marhafer, six years old, of 921 Crane street. He has been isolated with his mother in the city's detention hospital. Steps were taken to isolate other children who had come in contact with the boy, and everything is being done to prevent a spread of the disease. Schenectady is a large city, and the only reason it has escaped having cases of the disease before was the strict quarantine measures taken, and which are now being made even more stringent.

Dust Now Suspected.

Experiments to determine whether dust is the medium by which infantile paralysis is spread are being conducted by Federal surgeons. Laboratory tests and examinations of dust are being made.

Children Kept Off Streets.

In Poughkeepsie sixty-five cases of the disease are reported with nineteen deaths. Dr. John S. Wilson has taken the most drastic step since the appearance of the disease in that city by barring all children less than sixteen years of age from the public streets, and the police have been notified to co-operate in the enforcement of the order.

Nineteen Year Old Girl Dead.

Miss Dorothy Griffeths of Granville, died on Sunday at the hospital at Blackwell's Island after a two days' illness of infantile paralysis. She was 19 years old, and graduated last year from the Granville High School and soon afterward entered the training class for nurses at Blackwell's Island.

New Case In Pittsfield.

Another new case has developed in Pittsfield when it was found that Kenneth Norton, twenty months old, had been suffering from the disease in a mild form for a week and was playing with other children up to Tuesday when the case was found. This is the fifth case in that district.

First Death In Middletown.

Norman Kelly Cox of 23 Liberty street, Middletown, the third person in that city to develop infantile paralysis died on Monday night in his 12th year.

EPIDEMIC GROWS OUTSIDE NEW YORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Aug. 23.—Infantile paralysis cases took a big jump today when 74 new cases were reported to the state health department and four deaths, pushing the totals to 1,569 and 164 respectively.

This is the largest number reported in any half day and it was said at the health department that without doubt today's number would establish new records.

Today's cases were reported mainly from Long Island, the Roslyn branch reporting 37 of the cases. The Middletown branch reported 3 cases while 15 were reported from Westchester county.

Other places reporting cases were: Lockport, Niagara county; Fultonville, Montgomery county; Brutus, Cayuga county; Baldwinsville, Onondaga county; Poughkeepsie, four; East Fishkill, Dutchess county, 2; Oswego and Scribo, Oswego county; Saratoga and Middle Grove, Saratoga county; Oneonta City and Oneonta town, Otsego county; Red Hook, Dutchess county; New Berlin, Chenango county; Cornwall, Orange county.

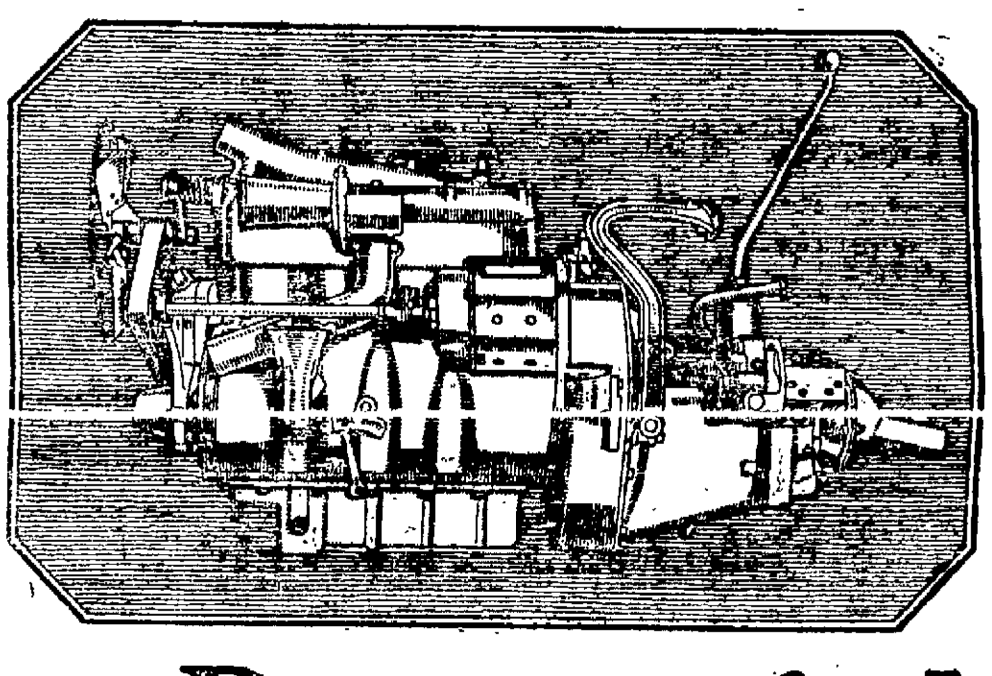
In other years when the epidemic of infantile paralysis has been on the peak has been reached during September. The health department expects that this year the highest number of cases will be reached next month when there will be a sudden falling off.

Deaths today were reported from Huntington, Suffolk county; Red Hook and East Fishkill, Dutchess county, and Ocean Beach, Suffolk county.

No Quorum in City.

Because some of the aldermen of Poughkeepsie are enjoying a vacation President Allen of the common council of that city has found it impossible to call a meeting this week for the purpose of voting on the proposed taxpayers' election on the Warring School expenditure, as there are not enough aldermen left in the city to make a quorum.

33⅘ Horse Power



From This Powerful MAXWELL ENGINE

Almost 34 horse-power from this regular stock Maxwell engine!

34 actual, brake horse-power!

Proved by an accurate dynamometer test, made in the Maxwell laboratories August 10, 1916.

There has been a lot of talk about horse-power, and we just want to let Maxwell owners and prospective owners know that in respect to horse-power, as in most other respects, the Maxwell leads by a comfortable margin. Not that we attach such great importance to horse-power. We don't. We never have.

Horse-power—abundant horse-power—is only one of many superior features of the Maxwell.

We are selling motor cars—complete motor cars—not engines or horse-power.

Horse-power is a matter that is secondary to motor efficiency and economy.

A giant has no advantage if he does not apply, or wrongly applies, his strength.

Maxwell cars have horse-power—all you want or need—probably more per pound of car weight than any other automobile in the world.

But we don't make any loud cry about it.

Because we have more than horse-power to sell you.

Because you are, and should be, interested in results, the net effectiveness of power.

We challenge competitive tests. We invite comparison.

Because we absolutely know that no car of its class or weight can surpass the Maxwell on speedways, on rough roads, through sand or mud, anywhere.

And because we know, and you will know, that, everything considered, the Maxwell is the World's Greatest Motor Car Value!

ONE CENT A WORD ADVS. BRING RESULTS

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

(From Our Regular Correspondent).

Governor Hughes has made it perfectly clear that as president he will advocate the restoration of the duty on sugar. According to the Republican view, the duty on sugar is highly important because it plays a dual part, protecting the beet sugar industry of the entire country and the cane sugar industry of Louisiana and because it yields a tremendous revenue without imposing any material burden on the consumers. That the sugar tariff can be made to yield a large revenue has been certified to by the Democrats in repealing a portion of the Underwood bill which would have put sugar completely on the free list before it could go into operation. The Republican duty on sugar yielded annually $53,000,000 revenue. This duty President Wilson, against the advice of Rep Underwood and other more experienced Democrats, insisted upon abolishing and congress, supine before his mandate, incorporated in the Underwood bill a provision which would have put sugar on the free list by successive steps When, however, practically 75% of the duty had been removed the deficit in the treasury loomed so large, despite the special taxes which had been imposed, that the Democratic leaders decided to repeal the clause which would have abolished the last of the sugar duty and thus avoid a further loss of approximately $15,000,000, and this was done, with the help of Republican votes. Mr. Hughes now indicates that one of the constructive policies of the administration will be the restoration of the duty on sugar, with, presumably, an increase of the customs revenues from this one item alone of according to present rates of consumption, nearly $60,000,000 Some of Mr Hughes Democratic critics have been urging him to propose a constructive policy This is his answer to such criticism.

The Shipping Bill.

Certain of your readers have written suggesting that the criticism of the shipping bill in this correspondence was unduly harsh, that it struck them as partisan rather than just The truth is that the severest critics of the shipping bill are Democrats They dare not openly criticise the measure because they fear the revenge of the president, and more especially, of his son-in-law, Secretary McAdoo, the real father of the shipping bill. In proof of this, note what the New York Times, a Democratic paper which is loyally supporting Wilson, has to say. It says of the shipping bill which has gone to conference, "It is not the old bill. It may be harmless because futile, but is still open to a multitude of objections," and again "The shipping bill is a shadow of its original form as it approaches enactment Meanwhile the case against it has grown stronger. If the bill were [illegible] strengthened further by the omission of other causes of original opposition—as, for example, by the omission of the use of government money in antagonizing private enterprise—there might be acquiescence in the fragment that is left" The Times, which certainly cannot be suspected of Republican partisanship in view of its loyal support of Mr. Wilson, does not say, as your correspondent has said, that the only purposes in passing what is left of the shipping bill are (1) to "save the face of the president." (2) to provide places for "deserving Democrats" at $7,500 a year and expenses, and (3) to make $50,000,000 of government funds available for expenditure by the administration during the presidential campaign. The Times can hardly be expected to say that. But it does make perfectly clear that there is no good reason for passing it, that there are many valid objections to it, and it leaves to the common sense of its readers to decide what are the real reasons back of the administration's insistence on its passage.

Wilson Losing Grip.

As seen from afar, President Wilson appears to be losing the grip he has had on congress. With the vast patronage at his disposal and Secretary McAdoo's reputation for never failing to get even with a politician who opposes either the president or himself, Mr. Wilson has been able to dictate absolutely to congress heretofore. But as if they foresaw his defeat in November, certain Democratic senators are now leading a revolt. President Wilson, after vetoing the immigration bill, forbade its reconsideration as he considered it politically inexpedient to agitate the subject further on the eve of the presidential election. Accordingly the Democratic caucus of the senate met and voted to lay the bill aside until after the election. Now, however, ten Democrats have bolted the caucus and voted to take up and repass the bill The loyal Democratic senators are still trying to carry out Mr. Wilson's orders and may prove successful, as they have authority to make generous promises of patronage to those who will recant and obey the White House, and to make dire threats of executive wrath to those who remain off the reservation.

Strikes and Safeties.

New York is still awaiting with eager interest the outcome of the railroad strike negotiations being carried on at Washington although it is still confident that a strike will be averted. New Yorkers are generally relieved that the renewed danger of a street-car strike has been dissipated by the yielding of the companies to certain demands which were supported by the mayor. But there is now another strike which has greatly increased the demand for safety razors and which threatens to make New Yorkers generally resemble William Jennings Bryan or Senator Vardaman. The New York barbers have gone on strike and only men whose wives are experts with scissors and a bowl can find relief from superfluous hirsute adornment. Puffy whiskers are coming into style. Bald-headed men are in clover and there is much anxious demand for safety razors which will give a quick scrape with the least pain Certainly "little old New York' does have its troubles.

MELTING ADDRESS WAS UNDELIVERED

Alderman Crane Cut No Ice With Rotary Club at Luncheon Today—Sang Song by Harry Lauder.

"Ice" was to have been the subject of an address at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club at the Hotel Eichler today by Alderman Walter P. Crane but on account of the weather the speaker was obliged to give the luncheon the the absent tratment. Ice as a subject was confined to the drinking water and the cream. President Willis Hills presided.

Messages were read from club members unable to be present, one being from Major George Chandler who wrote from somewhere in Texas that he "was busy as a pup." The major added that the Rotary Club was of the best stuff in Kingston.

Routine business and brief talks from the officers made up the program of the luncheon. A new song was sung among the old favorites, this being composed and sung by Harry Lauder and entitled "In the Rotary." It is as follows:

Once every week, every week in the year,
A very fine bunch of good fellows appear.
They are the livest of wires you could find,
Always ahead, they are never behind.

Chorus.

In the Rotary, in the Rotary,
That's the place to find sociability
No worry or care, from business right away
Having a smoke, cracking a joke,
With your pals in the Rotary.

Once a week, every week in the year
Everyone's sure of an hour of good cheer.
Now an hour of good cheer is a tonic were told,
An hour of good cheer is worth barrels of gold.

Committees named by President Hills are announced as follows:

Entertainment—Thomas W. Flemming, chairman; C. R. Stull, Dr. Sanderson, Arthur Connelly, Sam Watts.

Fellowship—Frank Keator, chairman; Arthur Carr, Tom Abrams.

Public Affairs—Palmer Canfield, Jr., chairman, David Burgevin, Robert Leighton.

Rotary Clubs in this district will charter a boat next spring from New York to Savannah for the international convention of Rotary Clubs. On the committee to arrange for "On to Altanta," are: Arthur Carr, Charles Everett, C. R. Stull, Charles O'Connor, Robert Leighton.

STARTED BY CHILD'S PLEA.

Little Girl's Note Starts Drive on Blind Tigers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 23.—"Can you not keep my papa from getting drunk? He gets whiskey at a blind tiger near our house. He is the best papa in the world until he visits that dive. I think mamma knows where the dive it. Please break up that dive."

This appeal, coming from a little girl, caused Police Commissioner Douglass to issue a call to the women of Memphis to report to him the existence of blind tigers and already the call is bearing fruit. Some of the women call over the telephone, others write pitiful notes. They all beg that their identity be kept secret. "My husband would kill me if he knew I told where he buys his whiskey," wrote one woman.

"I'm out to clean up those dives, which are taking bread and clothing from men's families and filling the jails," said the commissioner. "and I'm not going to stop until I have run them out of the city."

Oppressive Weather.

With the thermometers hovering in the nineties in the shade the past few days have broken all heat records this summer, with the exception of one day, August 8. It has been so hot in fact that along the Rondout creek on the boatyards the men have been forced to quit work during the afternoons. Generally there is a breeze stirring along the water, but whatever breeze there has been the past few days has not aided in lowering the temperature.

STORM ENDANGERS U. S. AEROPLANES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Headquarters American Punitive Expedition in Mexico, Aug. 22, via Radio to Columbus, N. M., Aug. 23.—Officers and men of the aviation squadron fought desperately against a terrific wind storm today to save the war planes on duty at headquarters.

The storm broke without warning. The canvas hangars were torn loose from the moorings and the tornado threatened to send the delicately lined machines to destruction. Officers and men turned out to meet the emergency and thirty of them clung to the wings of the machines to save them from the storm. After half an hour's battle, the machines were saved after slight damage had been done.

WILLIAM GLEASON,

GLEASON BACK ON COACHING JOB WITH WHITE SOX.

William Gleason.

The veteran Kid Gleason, who was released with Jimmie Callahan, when Clarence Rowland became manager of the White Sox is now back with the Chicago American League team in the capacity of coach. When released by the White Sox, more than a year ago, Gleason had several offers to manage major league teams, but refused them and went to his home in Philadelphia, declaring he was through with baseball and would devote the rest of his days to business.

But Owner Comiskey, evidently thinking that the White Sox needed some one to restore the old fighting spirit, sent his secretary to Philadelphia last week to induce Gleason to return. It is understood that Gleason would not append his signature to a contract until a large salary had been written into it.

Gleason entered baseball in 1890, signing with the Phillies as a pitcher. In 1894 he pitched for the famour Baltimore Orioles and helped them win their first pennant. The next year he switched to second base and was traded to the New York Giants the following year. Later he went to the Detroit Tigers, and from them to the White Sox, when Jimmie Callahan became identified with that team.

PATROLMAN KILLS MEMPHIS BAD MAN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 23.—Bill Latura, all-around "bad man" and desperado, was killed today by a patrolman who was attempting to arrest him for violation of the liquor law. Latura for years has enjoyed a strange immunity from arrest, although lawless in the extreme.

Ten years ago he walked into a gambling den here after losing his money, pulled a gun and shot seven men dead. He was arrested but acquitted on a self-defense plea. His gun contained many "notches" in wild western style.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 23.—The most important feature of the trading at the beginning of business on the stock exchange today was the urgent buying of Steel Common. There was a flood of buying orders in that stock long before the beginning of business and as soon as the gong sounded the stock was taken as offered in all parts of the crowd, with the opening sales recorded as 12,000 shares, from 98¼ to 98¾, a gain of 1½ from yesterday's close. Other issues were also in brisk demand, with the various groups selling at the highest prices reached in many months. Reading started at 79¼, the highest since May, and Union Pacific rose a point to 143½. Erie rose ¾ to 38¾, and New York Central ⅝ to 107. The greatest gain in the railway list was made in Norfolk and Western, which rose 2 points to 132¼. The munition stocks were also active and strong, Crucible Steel advancing 1¾ to 79, Baldwin Locomotive ⅞ to 82¼, and Lackawanna Steel 1¼ to 79¼. Colorado Fuel sold at 51½ against 50¾ at the close yesterday. The Marine issues were exceptions to the upturn, the preferred declining 1½ to 100½, and the common, after starting an eighth higher to 38⅛, declined to 37¾.

Heavy trading in Steel Common attracted attention and large scale buying orders carried the price from 97⅞ to a new high record of 99. While selling orders were on a large scale, the suppy was easily absorbed. Advance and reaction followed each other rapidly in other issues realizing on a large scale being more than offset by new outside buying. Willys-Overland dropped 2 points and then rallied sharply. An advance to 28¾ in Tennessee Copper was followed by fractional recessions. Reading, after selling at 109½ reacted to 108¼, and some of the other railroad stocks which had shown strength in the morning yielded strongly. Money loaning at 2¼ per cent.

Business was in a smaller volume in the late afternoon than at any time during the day. Price movements in this period were generally confined to narrow limits. There was a sharp advance of over a point in Goodrich Rubber, which sold above 74 and Willys-Overland rose 2 points to 48¼. Inspiration copper was strong, selling at 53½.

The market closed steady. Profit taking sales held the market in check in the final dealings, with recessions of about a point being noted in the active issues. Steel Common, after selling at 99⅜, reacted to 98. Anaconda declined over a point from its early high. The Marine issues continued in supply. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds strong.

MEYERS MAKES A HIT

Indian Catcher Doing Real Come-Back With Brooklyn.

Not Only Has Chief Improved in Batting, but Work Behind Bat Has Been Revelation—Timely Hits Have Helped Win Games.

Chief Meyers has come into his own. Discarded by John McGraw as "through," looked upon by Polo Grounds fans as a once great catcher who had slipped back immeasurably, the chief has accomplished a wonderful comeback and is an idol in Brooklyn.

It is an admitted fact that a player, grown stale, will often stage a startling change in form when he dons the uniform of another team, and this is exactly what has happened in the case of John Tortes Meyers, the college-bred aborigine.

The chief has had a rather picturesque career. A graduate of Dartmouth, he took a three-year post-graduate course in baseball in the minor leagues and came to the Giants from St. Paul in 1908, costing the club $6,000. At Marlin in the spring of 1909 he jumped into the limelight as a long-distance hitter and was received by the New York fans with open arms. Personality, a quality in which so many players are lacking, stuck out all over the chief, and for six years he was one of the most popular players who ever wore a Giant uniform.

It was last year that Meyers gave the first indication that he was slipping, and there were few regrets on the part of the fans when the Indian was sent to Brooklyn and Bill Rariden was signed to take his place. In 110 games last year he hit the ball for an average of exactly .232, and it appeared that he was about ripe for the minors.

Then came the transformation, not only in his batting, but in his catching.

Chief Meyers.

Meyers loomed up in great form behind the bat when the Robins opened the present season, and he has maintained a steady pace ever since. The result is that he ranks second only to Uncle Robbie in the affection of the fans across the bridge. He looks like a different man today, and his timely hits have broken up more than one game for the league leaders. Just now he is suffering from a bad cold, but it hasn't affected his playing to any noticeable extent.

WHY CANNOT HURLERS BUNT?

Miller Huggins Unable to Understand Reason for Twirlers' Failure to Advance Runners.

Miller Huggins, manager of the St. Louis Nationals, is in the market for a course of instruction or some inducement that will make his pitchers good bunters. Huggins, who formerly led the league as a sacrifice hitter, cannot understand why the average pitcher pushes the ball hard enough to make an easy out or pops up a dinky fly when trying to advance a man.

When it was suggested that he offer a bonus, he smiled. "I've tried it," he said. "I've even called them out for special practice, but the pitchers won't get the knack."

Huggins believes this is due in great measure to the obsession fostered from the sand lots up through the minors to the big league that the pitcher is not supposed to hit.

President Hill of Western Association Issues Warning Against Betting on Contests.

President Hill of the Western association has sounded a warning against betting on baseball, especially on the games of the association. He does not believe the national game ever will become corrupted by gamblers as was racing. He declares the sport is being menaced seriously and urges everyone who loves it to assist in checking the evil before it gains much further headway.

PLEASANT SUMMER VACATION.

Morris Husted's Hunting is Season's First Snake Story.

Morris Husted of this city, who is spending his vacation at Hawthorne, N. Y., had an exciting time Monday when he encountered two huge black snakes, both of which he killed. The largest measured about 4 feet 3 inches and weighed 5 pounds; the other, believed to be its mate, reached the length of 3 feet 6 inches and weighed as high as 4½ pounds. Both were exceedingly large and one, it is said, gave him a sharp battle in order to kill it without being bitten.

The snakes were caught on the estate of Sylvester Van Tassel and it is said that they are plentiful. A number of copperheads have been seen in the vicinity, and maybe a few of those may be added to Husted's list of snakes to be killed, for he is hunting them every day.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, Aug. 23.—The fellow who said that "youth will be served" was right. Youth is served ultimately, but sometimes it isn't before age has had just about as many helpings as it desires.

Ed Geers is over seventy—a decade beyond Doc Osler's chloroform age. Yet "Pop," incapacitated somewhat by injuries continues to win races almost at will over the Grand Circuit tracks, athough pitted against reinsmen half and one-third his age.

George Bothner is about 50, yet last winter George "rassled" several of the youthful cracks who outbulked him 25 to 75 pounds—and pinned 'em to the mat. Frank Kramer began cycling shortly after John Quincy Adams became president of these United States, yet he still ranks among the champions. A 70 year old chap up Saratoga, N. Y., way rowed a race a few weeks ago and covered the distance in faster time than the bulk of the youthful oarsmen in America.

Sam Langford is nearing the 40 year mark but you don't notice any of our modern heavyweights picking quarrels with him. Bob Fitzsimmons didn't become a champion until well along in his 30's. Kid McCoy's greatest fight was when he was nearly 40 years old. A dozen other ring warriors gained their greatest fame after 30.

Age Doesn't Handicap These.

Harry Vardon is close to 50—but he is still a fairly good golfer; so fair, in fact that he ranks as the very best little golfer in the world. Walter Travis, aged 55, won the Metropolitan golfing championship a year ago, matched against a field of link marvels. The story of practically every golfing battle shows that age has an equal chance against youth.

"Pa" Weston is something like 74 years of age—but do you know anyone who can outwalk him, ten miles, fifty miles or a thousand miles?

Edwards Plank is 41 or 42—yet Left has been pitching a brand of baseball during the last six weeks that is excelled by no man in the game. Honus Wagner, 42, is outplaying every shortstop in baseball when it comes to all-around work. Lajoie, aged 41, stole home the other day—a trick that is turned only once in a season by even the sprightliest players.

Yes youth will be served—after age gets its share.

Greasing Skids For Rowland.

"Raus mit Clarence Rowland," is the Chicago cry. The White Sox fans blame the in-and-out work of Comiskey's pets on poor management. They claim that the Sox have so much natural power that if they weren't handicapped by "bungling leadership" they would be so far in the front now that the American League race would be over.

Here is what Callyers' Eye, a Chicago sporting publication, has to say in part anent Rowland and the Sox

If Charles A. Comiskey expects the White Sox to win the American League gonfalon he must get a manager—AT ONCE. Chicagoans, noted the length and breadth of the country for their fairness, "pulled" for Rowland to make good, overlooked his mistakes, hoping against hope. The time, however, is past for sentiment and Clarence Rowland must make way for a successor.

"To continue to allow Rowland full management of the team in the field means that although Comiskey possesses the best team he has had in years and one that is far outplaying all others in the American League, he is doomed to see his men suffer ignominious defeat.

"If the White Sox were in possession of the services of Fielder Jones they would at this moment not be fighting for the lead, but would be romping out in front, possibly fifteen games to the good.

"Primarily, Rowland knows nothing of the finer points of baseball. But they do say he is a good manager off the field. That he will learn is to be expected, but he should not be allowed to do so at the expense of the White Sox losing the much coveted pennant. The public demands that Comiskey remove Rowland—if necessary go on the bench himself.

"The 'Eye' believes such demands should not be made unless a fitting successor can be found. Comiskey has such a man—one who has the makings of a great manager; one who is the greatest player in either league today.

"And that man is Ray Schalk."

To Mortgage Paragon Theater.

A special meeting of the shareholders of the Paragon Theatres Corporation will be held at the company's office New York, on Wednesday, August 30, 1916, at 11 a. m., for the purpose of authorizing the execution and placing a first mortgage upon its property, located on Main street, Beacon. In a letter to the Beacon stockholders President Louis D. Jennings says: The Paragon Theatre at Beacon is nearing completion and will be ready for operation early in September. A part of the company's plan it to place a first mortgage on its theatres. The interest on the first mortgage amounts to 5½ per cent. The money realized on the mortgage, put into theatre building, will realize a very much larger amount than 5½ per cent. In other words, the money will be out working for the stockholders and earning dividends.

He lived in Kingston for nine years but moved to Watertown thirty-six years ago. Seventeen years ago he passed through Kingston but has not been here since. Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke).

The league-leading Dodgers have been struck a blow by the wounding yesterday of Jimmy Johnston, whose outfielding and hitting have helped the club wonderfully.

Doctors who examined the rib section of Frank Baker today announced that it will be at least two weeks more before the Yankee third sacker can resume operations. The busted ribs haven't knitted sufficiently.

After suffering defeat in the first game, the Pirates rose up in the second, scored nine runs in the fifth inning and cinched the game against the Phillies.

The Red Sox further increased their lead by defeating the Indians while the Yanks were beating the second place White Sox.

More and more it looks as if the Sox will be world series repeaters.

Brooklyn now has a lead of four games over the second place Bostonians; not a big margin but one that looks healthy enough to cause Dodgerites to write in for world series reservations.

The Giants again suffered a shutout. That makes 37 successive runless innings for them.
